Introduction
The collection consists of a single reel of microfilm containing information related to the Oak Grove Telephone Company of Savannah, Andrew County, Missouri. Materials within the collection include minutes, membership lists, financial records, constitution and by-laws, and a telephone directory for the Andrew County Mutual Telephone Company.

On January 28, 1902, the citizens of Savannah, Missouri, met at the Oak Grove School House to organize the Oak Grove Telephone Company. The line ran north of the school house at a crossroads, south to the Kansas City Railroad located northwest of Savannah. The line made connections with the Lamar Telephone Company and the Andrew County Mutual Telephone Company. The Oak Grove Telephone Company operated as an independent telephone company until 1916.
