Historical Note:

Longtime Jackson County resident Rahe James Russell was born in 1906 and lived in the area until his death in 2007. Russell worked in real estate and was a proud outdoorsman in his free time. He was married to his wife, Virginia Russell, for 76 years. The two had a daughter, Virginia Taylor, and two granddaughters, Amy Taylor Haun and Polly Revare.

John Wilmot Taylor, brother-in-law to Virginia Taylor, was born in 1922. Upon his graduation from the University of Colorado, he served with the U.S. Army's heavy artillery in World War II, fighting in the Battle of the Bulge. He worked in commercial real estate and belonged to the Kansas City Bicycle Club along with his wife, Arline Smith Taylor.

Belles of the American Royal (BOTAR) was founded in 1949 to encourage interest in the American Royal. Twelve young women were selected to serve as hostesses at the American Royal Coronation Ball. Today, BOTAR is a 1,200-member women's leadership organization that promotes local agribusiness. Funds raised from the annual BOTAR ball supports the American Royal's scholarship and educational programs.

Arrangement:

The collection has been arranged chronologically into 5 folders.

Scope and Content Note:

Folder 1 consists of photographs depicting the Russell and Taylor families. Folder 2 contains two copies of reminiscences, one photocopy and one typed, of the Great Depression by Rahe J. Russell, grandfather of Amy Taylor Haun. Folders 3 and 4 both contain BOTAR materials: a 50th anniversary book co-authored by Haun and a VHS tape of a ball, respectively. Folder 5 includes a transcript of an oral history by John Wilmot Taylor, uncle to Haun.
