Historical Note:

Guy Brasfield Park, the son of Thomas Woodson and Margaret Baxter Park, was born on June 10, 1872, at Platte City, Missouri. He received his education at Gaylord Institute in Platte City and at the University of Missouri. In 1896 he graduated from the university's law school and was admitted to the Missouri Bar. Park thereafter returned to Platte City where he began to practice law. During his early career he served as city attorney of Platte City and was twice elected prosecuting attorney for Platte County.

On 16 November 1909, Park married Eleanora Gabbert of Platte City. They had one daughter, Henrietta.

In 1922 Guy Park was elected to the Missouri State Constitutional Convention. In that same year, he was elected to a six-year term as judge of Missouri's fifth judicial circuit court. Park was re-elected to the circuit court in 1928 but resigned on 17 October 1932 to accept the nomination for governor of Missouri. Park was selected by the Missouri Democratic State Committee as the replacement for candidate Francis M. Wilson who died on 12 October 1932. On November 8, 1932, Park defeated his Republican Party opponent, Edward H. Winter, by a plurality of 338,123 votes. On January 9, 1933, Park was inaugurated as Missouri's 38th governor.

At the end of his governorship in January 1937, Park returned to Platte City to resume his private law practice. He later served as a member of the Missouri State Constitutional Convention in 1943 and 1944. Guy B. Park died in Jefferson City, Missouri, on 1 October 1946.

Arrangement:

The materials within this collection have generally been kept in their original order. They are arranged alphabetically by subject, personal name, the name of a state or federal agency or department, the name of a state or federal official, or the name of a public or private organization. Within each division, the documents are arranged chronologically. Replies to correspondence and subsequent related documents are generally filed immediately following the initial document.

Scope and Content Note:

This collection provides a comprehensive view of the gubernatorial administration of Guy Park. A small amount of material dated 1932 relates mostly to the death of Francis M. Wilson and to Park's election. The majority of the material within this collection is dated 1933 through 1936 and consists of personal and official correspondence and papers. Another small amount of material dated 1937 consists of personal matters and best wishes from state officials and friends. Correspondence of Park's administrative assistants, Woodson Cockerill and Sam Hargus, is interspersed throughout the collection.

Foremost among the major topics of the collection are the economic issues, which confronted Missourians during the nationwide depression of the 1930s. The numerous economic problems encountered by business and agriculture are especially well-documented. Also noteworthy are materials regarding the establishment and operation of state relief programs and materials regarding the relationship between Missouri and the federal agencies created during the first presidential administration of Franklin D. Roosevelt. Other major topics include blacks, the Democratic Party, education, foreclosures, legislation, penal institutions, political patronage, prohibition and taxation.
