- Clippings
- Correspondence
- American Red Cross
- U.S. Food Administration
- Liberty Loan
- Woman's Committee, Council of National Defense

Scope and Content Note:

The Stephens Papers consist of correspondence, clippings, and publications covering the areas of her war work. The papers are arranged by type of material or by organization.

The Clippings are from miscellaneous newspapers and magazines and cover the work of the Woman's Committee, Council of National Defense, the Red Cross, food conservation, child welfare, and Liberty Loan Drives. There is an editorial from the Pictorial Review on the worth of the Woman's Committee during the war and urging its continuation after the war and advocating equal suffrage

Correspondence is from the Missouri Division of the U.S. Food Administration pertaining to the conservation of food—particularly meat, cereal and sugar; the Red Cross on nursing activities and Junior Red Cross activities; the Woman's Committee, Council of National Defense about child welfare work; and the Liberty Loan organization

Specific issues that come up in the correspondence include comments on women's lack of interest in the work and men's disfavor of women taking active parts in war work, the organization of "colored" women in work of the Woman's Committee, ongoing concerns about child welfare, and hopes that women's active participation in the war effort will lead to suffrage after the war.

The American Red Cross materials include publications of the organization as well as records from the Boone County Red Cross auxiliaries.

The U.S. Food Administration materials are primarily publications dealing with food conservation and production. The Liberty Loan materials are mostly publications as well

The Woman's Committee, Council of National Defense records include minutes and reports of the Fourth District of which Stephens was chair. There is also a history of the Fourth District, bulletins from the national office, and miscellaneous items including stickers and posters.
