Historical Note:

Robert P. Christeson was born September 5, 1911, to Ethel May and Frank C. Christeson in Dixon, Missouri. After graduating from Dixon High School in 1928, he attended Drury College in Springfield, Missouri. After one year he transferred to the University of Missouri where he obtained a degree in Agriculture in 1933. The Depression made it necessary for Christeson to move back to Pulaski County after graduation to help his father on the family farm.

He was able to find a job as a county extension agent in 1935 and held numerous positions in agriculture such as farm management specialist for the Farm Security Administration in New Madrid, Missouri, agricultural research at the University of Arkansas, and agricultural statistician for the U.S. Department of Agriculture in Las Cruces, New Mexico; Lincoln, Nebraska; Lafayette, Indiana; and Washington, D.C. He also served in the U.S. Army from 1942 to 1943. Christeson met Joan Nalley in Lafayette and the two married on August 22, 1961. He retired in 1969 and moved to Auxvasse, Missouri, to be near his father.

Christeson grew up at a time when fiddling and square dancing were regular social activities. Every community had its fiddler and Christeson wanted to become one of them. He received a fiddle for Christmas one year and learned to play. He also played the reed organ and piano and enjoyed playing accompaniment for other fiddlers. Christeson did not keep up with his fiddling throughout the 1930s and 1940s and one night at a square dance in Las Cruces, he tried to teach a young fiddler a tune and realized that he had forgotten it. This event sparked a life-long mission of collecting song books, albums, sheet music, and wire recordings of fiddle tunes throughout Missouri and the Midwest. He bought a Webster wire recorder in 1948 and began taking his vacations in Missouri to record the fiddlers he remembered from his youth.

Christeson compiled his fiddle tunes in the Old-Time Fiddler's Repertory: 245 Traditional Tunes, published by the University of Missouri Press in 1973. The University Press also released a two-record companion album to the book that year. He published a second volume in 1984. Also in 1973, a two-record album titled, The Old-Time Fiddler's Repertory: Historical Field Recordings of 41 Traditional Tunes, was released by the University Press. Christeson played the fiddle on Now That's a Good Tune: Masters of Traditional Missouri Fiddling, produced by the Cultural Heritage Center, University of Missouri, and released by Eagle Records of Columbia, Missouri, in 1989.

Christeson, known as the Dean of Missouri Fiddle Music, died April 9, 1992.

Scope and Content Note:

The Robert P. Christeson Collection reflects a broad collection of fiddle tunes, square dances, and other country dances and includes both written and recorded music. The collection consists primarily of audio recordings of fiddle tunes and other folk genres in the form of wire recordings, audio discs, audio tapes, and audio cassettes. Many fiddle tunes are duplicated on multiple formats. He also widely collected sheet music and song books for the piano, string and horn instruments, and band music.

The Sheet Music series is arranged chronologically and contains written music for dances such as waltzes, two-steps, schottisches, polkas, and quadrilles, as well as marches, ragtime, and secular and sacred songs. The dates range from 1844 to 1967. An alphabetical listing of sheet music follows the index. Consult the reference staff for access to a searchable database of the sheet music.

The Song Book series spans the years 1841 to 1984 and includes books on popular and traditional music, minstrels, hymns, music for country dances and square dances, band music and marches, folk songs, and music for the violin, organ, piano, and horn instruments. Books are undated unless otherwise noted.

The Correspondence series is divided into alphabetical (1927-1989) and chronological subseries (1932-1995) and includes both incoming and outgoing letters. The alphabetical portion of the correspondence contains letters Christeson wrote and received when he first began collecting fiddle tunes. Later, when his correspondence became more prolific, he switched to a chronological arrangement. He maintained relationships with numerous fiddlers across the country and was very active in fiddle associations, folk festivals, and fiddle contests. Many of Christeson's letters reflect his concerns regarding societal changes and his opinions on current events.

The Family and Personal Papers series (1902-1968) is arranged chronologically and includes letters to and from Frank and May Christeson, Christeson's public school and college records, his World War II and Veterans Administration papers, and information regarding his work history.

The Photographs series (1880s-1979) is arranged by subject and primarily contains photographs of Christeson and his family, and also includes photographs of fiddlers Christeson knew and included in his books. One folder has images of Frank's Switch, a store in Dixon, Missouri, whose owner closed on Saturday nights to have square dances and music jams for regular customers.

The Fiddle Organizations series contains mostly newsletters of various fiddle organizations, some correspondence, and information on upcoming festivals and fiddle contests. The collection includes a run of the Tennessee Valley Old Time Fiddlers Association publication, The Devil's Box, from 1968 to 1993. This series is arranged alphabetically by organization name.

The Festivals series (1961-1980) is arranged chronologically and contains correspondence, programs, brochures, and other information regarding folk festivals Christeson attended. The correspondence is primarily between Christeson and festival coordinators about his participation in the events.

The Fiddle Contest series includes flyers and programs for fiddle contests Christeson attended all over the country. There are many examples of score cards and contest rules, and correspondence dealing with the need for consistent judging rules for the contests. This series is arranged chronologically, but also includes undated material.

The Music Catalogs series is arranged by category of music and contains books and catalogs for all musical instruments, orchestra music, band music, song books and sheet music, and record company catalogs and newsletters.

The Square Dancing series includes flyers and invitations to dances, music catalogs, and instructional books on square dances, jigs, and clogging.

The History of Fiddles and Fiddlers series contains information Christeson collected on fiddling in general, the history of violins, journal articles and newspaper clippings on important fiddlers, and the history of fiddle contests sponsored by WOS radio station in Jefferson City, Missouri.

The Old-Time Fiddler's Repertory series includes Christeson's original manuscripts for the first and second editions of the book, handwritten sheet music, publicity files, correspondence, and an unpublished manuscript titled, "Old-Time Fiddler's Accompanist for Piano and Reed Organ."

The Audiovisual series includes Christeson's vast collection of audio discs, his original wire recordings of fiddle tunes, reel-to-reel audio tapes, and audio cassettes used to record fiddle tunes, jam sessions, fiddle contests, folk festivals, and piano accompaniments. There are also three 8mm film reels showing jig dancing. The audiovisual materials are undated unless otherwise noted.
