Historical Note:

The Book Review Club was founded by Dr. Henry O. Severance, University of Missouri librarian. The founding committee included several members of his staff as well as a librarian from the Columbia Public Library. The committee suggested names to be considered for membership and unanimous consent was needed for admission into the club.

The first meeting was held on October 19, 1931, and additional rules were agreed upon. Meetings were to be held on the 2nd and 4th Thursdays of the month at 7:45 p.m.; book reviews would last no longer than an hour and would then be followed by a discussion; and membership was limited to 20 people. Program and membership committees were also formed at the initial meeting. A constitution was created by Dr. Severance and adopted at a meeting on December 10, 1931. The aim of the club was “to read and discuss good literature.”

Books reviewed included both fiction works such as Gone with the Wind and the novels of Pearl Buck, as well as non-fiction works on a variety of subjects including history, science, biography, and politics. Dr. Severance died in 1942 and the club was renamed the Severance Book Review Club in his honor in 1944. The club disbanded in 2000 due to a decline in membership.
