Introduction

Approximately 2 cubic feet.

The records contain notes made by the Jackson County Medical Society on the different medical societies, professional journals, medical colleges, and health facilities in the greater Kansas City metropolitan area. Additional materials included photographs, miscellaneous papers, and biographical sketches on physicians, surgeons, and dentists in the Kansas City area.

The Jackson County Medical Society, established in 1874 and reorganized in 1881, strove to promote professional advancement for physicians and surgeons through regular discussions and interchange of opinions through its semi-monthly meetings. During the Society's meetings, members presented papers on everything from new medical procedures to theories on the religious causation of contagious disease. The members also worked to enforce a code of ethics. The society continues to exist to the present day.

Donor Information

The records were donated to the University of Missouri by the Jackson County Medical Society through the University of Missouri-Kansas City Medical Library on August 20, 1982 (Accession No. KA0165).
