Introduction

The collection contains a doctoral dissertation submitted to the School of Education at Northwestern University in March 1944. The dissertation, entitled, "A Cooperative Study of Occupations in the Greater Kansas City Area," by Elizabeth Kreps Wilson, summarizes the state of occupations in the Greater Kansas City area between 1941 and 1942. Included within the dissertation is an appendix entitled, "Occupational Study of Greater Kansas City Area," completed in 1942, as well as exhibits of forms, instructions, and reports related to the compilation of that study. Additional materials include minutes of the executive committee which, directed the study for the school districts of the Greater Kansas City area.

Elizabeth Kreps Wilson, director of High School Counseling in the Kansas City, Missouri, School District, directed an occupational study in the Greater Kansas City area between 1941 and 1943. Wilson then utilized the gathered data to complete her doctoral studies at the Northwestern University in 1944.
