R Doran, John Harvey. 582 Journal, 1864-1865. One volume.

This is the journal of John Harvey Doran, a carpenter and builder at Springfield, Greene County, Missouri. The brief entries in his journal concern his business activities, news of family and friends, and events at Springfield from 13 August 1864 to 24 September 1865.

John Harvey Doran's business appears to have been good during the period covered by his journal. He framed houses, installed window glass, completed various carpentry projects, and worked on a new mill building for customers including C. B. Holland, Joseph Gott, A. G. Leedy, and Charles Moss. He also made coffins for several individuals, one of whom was a refugee. He worked alone and with A. G. Leedy in the firm styled Leedy & Doran.

Doran's journal includes several entries concerning the military activities around Springfield in September and October 1864. Doran was called out with the local militia during Sterling Price's Missouri Expedition, and, until the emergency passed, spent much of his time working on Fort No. 5 on the eastern side of town. He also performed guard duties. There is an unexplained gap in the journal from 24 October 1864 through 12 January 1865. There is considerably less military news in the entries for 1865, reflecting the winding down of the war in Missouri, but Doran did note his enrollment in the newly-constituted Missouri Militia, the firing of cannons to celebrate the captures in Virginia of Petersburg and Richmond, the receipt of the news of Lincoln's assassination and the closure of business houses in Springfield on the following day, and the military execution of one Brownlee. In August 1865, Doran attended the trial of James Butler "Wild Bill" Hickok (whom he called "Haycock") for the killing of Dave Tutt, but did not elaborate on the trial or its outcome.
