Biographical Note:

Young-Hie Nahm Kromm was born in Seoul, South Korea, in 1946 to Chung C. Nahm and Al J. Nahm. After immigrating to St. Louis, Missouri, with her family in 1965, Kromm earned her bachelor's and master's degrees in architecture at Washington University. Kromm married David Valentine Kromm in the early 1970s and joined her father-in-law's architectural firm Kromm, Rikimaru, and Johansen, Inc. Throughout her career, Kromm specialized in designing nursing homes and K-12 schools, focusing on creating "culturally meaningful spaces." In the late 1990s/early 2000s, Kromm and her husband, David Kromm, led the Mississippi Valley Architecture project, a Missouri Humanities Council grant-funded project that photographed buildings constructed in the 1800s in river and mining towns in Missouri, some of which no longer exist. In 2013, Kromm helped found the Gateway Korea Foundation to foster an appreciation for Korean arts and culture in the American heartland.

Please note that this collection has been minimally processed and has not been heavily indexed.

Scope and Content:*Gateway Korea Foundation

This series contains bylaws, meeting minutes, program booklets, flyers, and a calendar book chronicling Kromm's role in founding the Gateway Korea Foundation in 2013, whose mission is to provide opportunities for Missourians to learn more about Korean culture. Most of the materials in this series focus on the Foundation's efforts to plan Korean-themed cultural events in the St. Louis area, such as the Chuseok Festival in 2017, a three-day event commemorating the traditional harvest festival in Korea. The organization's bylaws appear first, followed by meeting minutes, with the remaining contents arranged alphabetically, dating from 2012 to 2020.

Kromm, Rikimaru and Johansen, Inc.

The Marketing and Publicity subseries contains flyers, news articles, and testimonials highlighting projects completed by the firm and Young-Hie Nahm Kromm's career with the firm. Materials of interest include articles written by David Kromm, Young-Hie Nahm Kromm's husband, about the firm's work designing Crowder College's Maret Center and Community Colleges. The materials in this subseries are arranged chronologically, dating from 1990 to 2012.

The Projects subseries consists of floor plans, master plans, and photographs regarding projects Young-Hie Nahm Kromm worked on with Kromm, Rikimaru, and Johansen, Inc. The projects primarily focus on churches, savings and loan associations, children's homes, and schools.

Materials of interest in this series include a master plan titled Bonhomme Presbyterian Church: Master Plan for Physical Facilities. The master plan includes chapters containing diagrams and drawings outlining Bonhomme Presbyterian Church's goals to construct a physical facility that increased parking space, space for staff, educational and outreach programs, and space to accommodate 2,200 worshipers. The materials in this series are arranged alphabetically by project, dating from 1958 to 2010.

The Hospitals and Health Care Facilities sub-subseries primarily consists of site plans and photographs documenting Kromm's work designing hospitals, nursing homes, and health facilities in Missouri and Kansas. Projects of interest include Normandy Osteopathic Hospital and Delmar Gardens nursing homes. The materials in this sub-subseries series are arranged alphabetically, dating from 1980 to 2000.

The Schools sub-subseries consists of flyers, photographs, drawings, and testimonials documenting Kromm's involvement in designing educational facilities for K-12 schools, community colleges, and Universities. Materials of interest include promotional flyers developed by Kromm, Rikimaru, and Johansen, Inc., highlighting past projects and the firm's design philosophy. For example, the flyer for the Brentwood School District's Early Childhood Center identifies the reasoning behind Kromm's design of several rooms, such as the diagonal patterned walls, which Kromm and her colleagues used to signify the students' diversity and interaction with children from different backgrounds. Also included in this subseries are interior photographs of elementary, middle, and high schools Kromm helped design throughout the St. Louis Metropolitan Area. Some photographs of note include images of St. Charles West High classrooms, emphasizing the open floor plans popular in the 1960s and 1970s, which rejected traditional siloed classrooms in favor of wide-open spaces that were supposed to foster collaboration and interaction among students from various classrooms. The materials in this series are arranged alphabetically by school, dating from 1970 to 2021.

The Other Projects sub-subseries contains floor plans, architect renderings, and photographs of smaller projects undertaken by Kromm, Rikimaru, and Johansen, such as post offices and community centers. The materials in this sub-subseries are arranged alphabetically.

The Photographs sub-subseries contains images of Kromm, Rikimaru, and Johansen projects, either during or after construction. Subjects of interest include Francis Howell High School, Windsor Elementary School, Festus Intermediate School, and Warren Elementary School. The materials in this series are arranged into one folder, dating from 1999 to 2003.

The Slides sub-subseries consists of slides of Kromm, Rikimaru, and Johansen projects similar to the photographs found in the previous sub-subseries. However, some of the images in the slides predate Young-Hie Nahm Kromm's involvement with the firm, including the First Baptist Church of Vandalia (1965) and the First Church of Christ Scientist, Creve Coeur (1959). The materials in this sub-subseries are arranged alphabetically, dating from 1957 to 1995.

Mississippi Valley Research Project

The Mississippi Valley Research Project series contains reports and photographs documenting David and Young-Hie Nahm Kromm's efforts to document the Southeast Missouri mineral and river area's architectural history. Sponsored by the Missouri Humanities Council, this series contains photographs of historic structures identified by the Kromms during their survey, including St. Joachim Catholic Church in Old Mines, Missouri. Also included in the series is a PowerPoint presentation summarizing their findings. The materials in this series are arranged alphabetically, dating from 1997 to 2001.

The Photographs subseries contains images the Kromms took during their architectural survey of the Southeast Missouri mineral and river area. This series is arranged alphabetically by the community where the couple took the pictures and dates from 1997 to 2000.

Korean-American Journal

The Korean-American Journal series contains issues of the Korean-American Journal, a newspaper published in St. Louis, Missouri. The newspapers are written in Korean and are arranged chronologically, dating from 2015 to 2018.

Microfilm

The microfilm series contains microfilmed architectural plans drafted by Kromm, Rikimaru, and Johansen, Inc. employees, including Young-Hie Kromm. The materials in this series are arranged alphabetically, dating from 1967-1999

The Bids subseries contains project proposals submitted by Kromm, Rikimaru, and Johansen, Inc. for construction projects for schools, nursing homes, and hospitals. The materials in this subseries are arranged chronologically, dating from 1980 to 1999.
