PROVENANCE

The Western Historical Manuscript Collection began collecting material documenting the life of Dr. Thomas A. Dooley III in 1972 when the Columbia Broadcasting System and KMOX Radio donated tapes of Dooley's "That Free Men May Live" broadcasts. In July 1980, WHMC became the official repository of the late Tom Dooley's papers after his sister-in-law, Mrs. Gabrielle Dooley; his former secretary, Teresa Gallagher; the U. S. promoter of the Dooley canonization effort, the Reverend Maynard C. Kegler; and Dooley's attorney Paul Hellmuth, sent a letter to prospective donors urging them to deposit materials with the Joint Collection. The accessions received by WHMC include: KMOX radio, July 1980 (AA); W. D. Snively, August 8, 1980 (A); Kay Scanlan, August 18, 1980 (B); Teresa E. Gallagher, August 19, 1980 (C); The Reverend Maynard C. Kegler, August 19, and September 26, 1980 (D); Gabrielle Dooley, December 17, 1980 (E); Teresa E. Gallagher, January 22, 1981 (F); Reverend Kegler, January 22, 1981 (G); Addie Strobach, January 26, 1981 (H); Sister Mary Brigid, February 10, 1981 (I); Odessa Ofstad, Pickler Memorial Library, February 18, 1981 (J); Admiral Arleigh Burke, February 18, 1981; Admiral Arleigh Burke, February 24, 1981 (K); Thomas Jefferson Library, March 4, 1981 (L); Mrs. Irvina Starnes, March 5, 1981 (M); Lucille Selsor, March 11, 1981 (N); Gabrielle Dooley, March 20, 1981 (O); Rose M. Geraghty, June 23, 1981 (P); Gloria Sassano, April 20, 1981 (Q); Lucille Selsor, April 27, 1981 (R); Ronald Burkhard, MEDICO, Mary 12, 1981 (S); Jack Gilmore, September 23, 1981 (T); Gary Allison, November 10, 1981 (U); Barbara Aliprantis, Tom Dooley Heritage, August 19, 1986 (V); Kay Scanlon, October 10, 1986 (W); Mrs. Norvelle Simpson, March 5, 1981 (X); Teresa Gallagher, November 27, 1985 and November 10, December 5, 1986 (Y); Marjorie Courtney, Normandy Senior High School, May 27, 1987 (Z); Teresa Gallagher, June 21, 1988 (1); Lucille Selsor, June 21, 1988 (2); Kay Scanlon, June 22, 1988 (3); Jim Fisher, May 23, 1988 (4); Kathleen Robertson, May 7, 2009 (5).

HISTORY

Thomas Anthony Dooley was born in St. Louis January 17, 1927, the first of three sons born to Thomas and Agnes Dooley. Thomas Sr. was general manager of an American Car and Foundry plant. Dooley attended grade school at St. Roch's and Barat Hall. Later, he took private piano lessons and soloed with many orchestras in St. Louis. His family urged him to consider a career as a concert pianist and enrolled him in the Julliard School of Music during his teens, but by this time he intended to pursue a medical career. From 1940-1944, Dooley attended St. Louis University High School where he developed into a swimming and track star (collection S0054 contains references to Dooley from this period). After high school, Dooley began his undergraduate studies at Notre Dame University.

A brother from his mother's first marriage, Earle Manzelman, Jr., who died in battle during World War II, had inspired in Dooley a strong sense of patriotism. He interrupted his undergraduate studies by enlisting in the United States Navy as a Medical Corpsmen in 1944. Dooley received an honorable discharge from the Navy on July 19, 1946, whereupon he enlisted in the Naval Reserves. He resumed his studies at Notre Dame, earning extra money by playing piano in supper clubs and night clubs, and by conducting Greyhound tours through New Orleans, Denver, and New York in the summer. Dooley's father, Thomas Dooley, Jr., died in November 1948.

Dooley received his Doctor of Medicine degree from St. Louis University in 1953 and accepted a medical internship as a lieutenant in the Navy. He then volunteered for duty aboard the U.S.S. Montague, a cargo ship used to transport refugees from North to South Vietnam.

In May 1954, the Geneva Treaty divided Vietnam at the 17th parallel into two political zones. People north of the 17th parallel lived under the Viet Minh government, and those south of the 17th parallel lived under the government of Ngo Dinh Diem. Anyone living in one zone who wished to go to another zone was given three hundred days and aid in making this transfer. Hanoi and Haiphong remained free zones until May 1955.

In August 1954, Dooley transferred to Task Force Ninety, a unit participating in the evacuation of over 600,000 North Vietnamese known as the "Passage to Freedom." Here Dooley served as a French interpreter and medical officer for a Preventative Medicine Unit in Haiphong. Dooley eventually oversaw the building and maintenance of refugee camps in Haiphong until May 1955, when the Viet Minh took over the city.

Dooley returned to the United States later in 1955 and published his first book, a Vietnam memoir, entitled Deliver Us From Evil (1956). The book climbed the best-seller lists and appeared in a condensed form in Reader's Digest, which also reprinted it in eleven languages. Also in 1955, the United States Chamber of Commerce listed Dooley among the ten "Outstanding Men of America." Dooley became the youngest United States Navy Medical Corps officer in history to receive the Navy's Legion of Merit. The Navy selected Dooley to give lectures in the United States about its "Passage to Freedom" work. Dooley also received the highest national decoration of the South Vietnamese government.

In 1956, Dooley resigned from the Navy and persuaded the International Rescue Committee to sponsor bush hospitals in Southeast Asia. With proceeds from Deliver Us From Evil, Dooley and three former Navy corpsmen, established a hospital at Nam Tha, a village five miles south of the China border in Laos. In an article entitled "Why I'm A Jungle Medic," printed in Think magazine, June 1958, Dooley said they chose Laos because the country, with 3,000,000 people, had only one "bonafide" doctor.

St. Patrick's hospital in Nam Tha consisted of a surgical ward with fifteen beds, a medical ward with mats for thirty people, an operating room, and an out-patient clinic. Dooley's team constructed the buildings in the style of the indigenous architecture, using bamboo and thatch. The hospital had no electricity, x-ray equipment, plumbing, or air-conditioning. Dooley treated about one hundred patients a day for such diseases as tuberculosis, malnutrition, diphtheria, dysentery, pneumonia, small-pox, and burns.

In October 1957, Dooley and his staff turned St. Patrick's over to the government of Laos, to be run by Dooley trained Laotians. During his stay in Nam Tha, Dooley wrote a second book, The Edge of Tomorrow (1958), another best-seller, which told how his five-man team started a jungle hospital in the Kingdom of Laos.

In November 1957, under the auspices of the International Rescue Committee, and with the help of Dr. Peter Commanduras of George Washington Medical School, Dooley started the Medical International Cooperation Organization, or MEDICO. MEDICO sought to provide person-to-person medical service to the villagers of foreign lands. A non-sectarian group, it wanted to build, stock, supply, and train staff for small hospitals along the Iron and Bamboo curtains. After sixteen months, MEDICO planned to turn over the hospitals to the host country's government. The organization received hundreds of thousands of dollars in medicine and supplies from pharmaceutical houses throughout the United States. MEDICO also received money from private donations.

Early in 1958, Dooley established his second hospital in Laos at Muong Sing near the China border. By this time, Dooley had become a notable celebrity and hero to many. He appeared on Arthur Godfrey's radio show, Jack Paar's Tonight Show, and Ralph Edwards' This Is Your Life. Time, Life, and Look profiled him, and KMOX Radio in St. Louis gave Dooley his own Sunday night broadcast from Laos entitled "That Free Men May Live."

Dooley's fund-raising lectures inspired many people in the United States to organize in support of MEDICO. High school students organized "Duds for Dooley Days." Teresa Gallagher, a secretary for Metropolitan Life Insurance Company in New York, and Dooley's volunteer secretary, organized New York secretaries to ship "Dooley Kits" full of soap, toothpaste, and lollipops to the people in Laos. Gallagher's "disc team" secretaries also spent after-hours work time transcribing Dooley's correspondence from Sound Scriber dictaphone discs he used to facilitate answering his large volume of mail.

In August 1959, Dooley underwent chest surgery for melanoma, a rapidly spreading form of cancer. The Columbia Broadcasting System filmed the three hour operation at New York's Memorial Hospital. Dooley announced afterward, "I am not going to quit. I will continue to guide and lead my hospitals until my back, my brain, my blood and my bones collapse." Dooley returned to the lecture circuit in October, raising one million dollars for MEDICO. On Christmas day in 1959, Dooley flew back to his hospital in Muong Sing.

In 1960, Dooley published his third book, The Night They Burned the Mountain (1960). The book tells of MEDICO's founding and Dooley's struggle against cancer while helping the sick in Laos. In April of that same year, CBS televised Biography of a Cancer, a one-hour documentary including Howard K. Smith's interviews with Dooley and the actual filming of Dooley's cancer operation.

In June 1960, Dooley received an honorary Doctor of Science from Notre Dame University. Seven months later, Dooley flew back to New York Memorial Hospital. The cancer had spread to his lungs, liver, spleen, heart, and brain. Dooley died January 18, 1961, one day after his thirty-fourth birthday. His funeral was held January 23, 1961, at the St. Louis Cathedral. Reverend Leo C. Byrne, Bishop of St. Louis, said the Mass.

Dooley was buried beside his father in Calvary Cemetery. On May 27, 1961, Congress authorized the issuance of a commemorative gold medal to honor Dooley and his work. President Kennedy presented the medal to Dooley's mother, Agnes Dooley, at a White House ceremony on June 7, 1962. Kennedy commended Dooley for providing a model of American compassion before the rest of the world.

Without its charismatic fund-raiser, MEDICO's contributions decreased, forcing the organization to close four hospitals before the end of 1961, including Dooley's hospital in Muong Sing. In March 1962, MEDICO merged with the food distribution agency CARE. MEDICO maintained its name to recognize Dooley's work, but ceased to exist as a separate agency.

In September 1961, Verne Chaney, a Monterey, California chest surgeon and former director of MEDICO's Asian programs, enlisted the support of Dooley's relatives and associates, and started the Thomas A. Dooley Foundation. During Chaney's tenure as director, however, foundation members disagreed with him over its fiscal management. Chaney attributed the disagreements to a lack of objectivity among the foundation members.

In the summer of 1970, Teresa Gallagher, a charter member of the Thomas A. Dooley Foundation, and other members of the Foundation, left to establish the Tom Dooley Heritage, a voluntary agency founded to carry on Dooley's work. The Heritage built and maintained Tom Dooley Hospital, a forty bed bush hospital at Ban Nam Yao in northeastern Thailand twenty miles from the Laos border. The hospital served Thai villagers and Laotian refugees.

In the mid-1970s, the Oblates of Mary Immaculate, an order of priests that worked with Dooley in Laos, began an effort to have Dooley canonized. Reverend Maynard Kegler, O.M.I., director of King's House of Retreats in Buffalo, Minnesota, became the American promoter of the Dr. Thomas A. Dooley Cause. Father Kegler gathered statements from more than thirty people who believed in Dooley's sainthood. The Vatican required a search for Dooley documents, a definitive Dooley biography, and evidence of two Dooley miracles.

Kegler's sainthood investigation revealed Dooley's connection with the Central Intelligence Agency. Through the Freedom of Information Act, Kegler obtained nearly five hundred CIA documents he said revealed that Dooley kept the agency posted on troop movements and villager sentiments around his Laotian hospitals. Despite the revelation, Dooley's cause was accepted for consideration by the Vatican.

Tom Dooley's legacy of medical service endured into the 1980s. The Tom Dooley Heritage, under the leadership of Teresa Gallagher, continued to maintain a Dooley Memorial Hospital in Thailand and distributed funds, clothing and medicine to Asian hospitals and orphanages. Verne Chaney continued to raise funds for the Dooley Foundation-INTERMED projects, including a "Goats For Kids" program intended to solicit contributions to buy goats for undernourished children in Africa. Several film projects on Tom Dooley's life also remained in the planning stages.

SCOPE AND CONTENT

The Thomas A. Dooley papers document his family history and education, his work in Vietnam and Laos, and his role as a shaper of American public opinion about Southeast Asia. The collection also documents Dooley's cancer operation, his death, posthumous honors and efforts to have him canonized.

The papers' strengths include Dooley's correspondence with his mother, Agnes Dooley; letters of encouragement and support from notable admirers as well as school children and supporters, get-well correspondence concerning his cancer and condolences to his mother after his death; manuscripts of Dooley's books; scrapbooks containing newsclippings and articles on Dooley; and photographs. The collection does not include Agnes Dooley's letters to her son.

The collection also includes American and foreign editions of Dooley-authored books: Deliver Us From Evil (1956), The Edge of Tomorrow (1958), and The Night They Burned The Mountain (1960); and books about Dooley, by his mother Agnes, MEDICO secretary and Dooley Foundation co-founder Teresa Gallagher, and others. Tapes of "That Free Men May Live," Dooley's weekly program on KMOX radio, four lectures by Dooley, taped interviews with Muong Sing refugees, 3/4" videotapes of Dooley's television appearances and a 16mm film of a visit by Dooley to Minneapolis in 1959, comprise one series.

The photograph series contains images depicting Dooley's life from childhood, through medical school, in Vietnam and Laos, and during various promotional trips to America. It also includes images of Dooley's family members, personal friends and MEDICO volunteers from after Dooley's death.

The collection is divided into eleven series: 1) Before Vietnam, 1944-1953; 2) Vietnam, 1954-1956; 3) Laos, 1955-1960; 4) Cancer Operation and Death, 1959-1961; 5) Posthumous, 1961-1976; 6) Newsclippings Scrapbooks, 1933-1986; 7) Audio Tapes, 1956-1967; 8) Videotapes and Films, 1959-1986; 9) Articles, 1960-1969; 10) Books, 1956-1968; and 11) Photographs, 1930s-1975

Primary source materials on the life of Tom Dooley can also be found in collections held at St. Louis University's Pius XII Memorial Library and by Oblates of Mary Immaculate in Belleville, which maintains an archive of Dooley memorabilia.

SERIES DESCRIPTION

SERIES 1 - BEFORE VIETNAM, 1944-1953, FOLDERS 1-6

Includes information on Dooley's family, his 1946 Navy discharge papers; correspondence from his trip to Europe in 1948; papers given by Dooley's medical school instructors and Dooley's medical school notes; and a 1952 National Geographic article on Indochina. Arranged chronologically.

SERIES 2 - VIETNAM, 1954-1956, FOLDERS 7-31

Divided into three sub-series: Correspondence, 1954-1955, folders 7-10; Newsclippings, 1955-1956, folders 11 and 12; Manuscripts, 1954-1956, folders 13-20; and Other, 1951-1955.

The correspondence includes Dooley's letters to his mother, 1954-1955, describing his life as part of the USS Montaque medical team and the Navy's Passage to Freedom program. The correspondence also contains a chronological index of places and topics. The sub-series also includes letters to Rose Gilmore detailing the fall of Haiphong and describing Communist atrocities during the evacuation; and a letter from Merrill Lynch to St. Louis University offering a $500 gift as a tribute to Dooley.

The newsclippings contain newspaper accounts of the refugee evacuations from Haiphong and Dooley's decision to continue his work in Laos.

The manuscripts sub-series includes the original manuscript for Dooley's 1956 book, Deliver Us From Evil. Other manuscripts include "Passage To Freedom," written by Dooley in Saigon and Haiphong in 1954 and 1955; an article written by Dooley on the refugee evacuation; and an unpublished manuscript on the evacuation entitled Treatment for Terror, A Navy Doctor's Account of Vietnam's Flight To Freedom.

The final sub-series contains artifacts, notes and reports from Vietnam, 1951-1955. It includes Dooley's French and Vietnamese vocabulary notes; Vietnamese money and an anti-Communist poster; intelligence and medical situation reports pertaining to the evacuation; supply lists and a government service award. Each series is arranged chronologically.

SERIES 3 - LAOS, 1955-1960, FOLDERS 32-119

Divided into three sub-series: Correspondence and Memoranda, 1955-1960; Newsclippings, 1958-1961; Manuscripts, 1958-1969; and Other, 1959-1961.

The correspondence and memoranda sub-series also contains letters to Agnes Dooley and Rose Gilmore; other correspondents include MEDICO secretary Teresa Gallagher, Admiral Arleigh Burke, Sister Mary Brigid, and correspondents, K-Z. This series includes Dooley's "Special Letters" files containing correspondence from fans and admirers as well as notable celebrities, including Albert Schweitzer and Eleanor Roosevelt.

The newsclippings sub-series includes newsclippings documenting Dooley's Navy discharge and the organization of his private medical missionary in Laos; fund-raising speaking engagements; response to criticism that Dooley's medical practices were antiquated; and some clippings on the initial diagnosis of Dooley's cancer, his departure and return to Laos, and his death. The clippings also contain reports of the CARE-Medico merger, the recurrence of Dooley's cancer, and efforts to make film versions of Dooley's books. The series also includes two articles: one on Dooley's volunteer "disc team" typists and "Letter To A Young Doctor" by Tom Dooley, published in Think, February 1961.

The manuscripts sub-series contains the manuscript notes and a printer's galley of Give Joy To My Youth, 1958-1960, Teresa Gallagher's memoir of Tom Dooley published in 1965. The series also contains the manuscript for Dooley's 1960 book, The Night They Burned The Mountain and an unpublished manuscript, The Night of the Same Day, 1960.

The Other sub-series contains two artifacts: Dooley's handkerchief from Montmartre, France, 1959; and Dooley's 1960 Thai Airways plane ticket, 1960.

This series also contains the Congressional Record from June 6, 1960 citing Dooley's honorary degree at the University of Notre Dame, transcripts of Dooley's KMOX radio broadcasts, 1959-1961; and Sound Scriber discs, the green recording discs used for dictation by Dooley and later transcribed by the disc team volunteers in New York.

Each sub-series is arranged chronologically.

SERIES 4 - CANCER OPERATION AND DEATH, 1959-1961, FOLDERS 120-133.

Divided into three sub-series: Correspondence, 1959-1961; Newsclippings, 1959- 1961; Manuscripts, 1961; and Other, 1961.

The correspondence sub-series includes correspondence exclusively concerning Dooley's cancer. (Note: References to Dooley's cancer also appear in the correspondence sub-series in series 3.) It also contains condolences sent by letter and telegram to Agnes Dooley after her sons' death. The bulk of this series includes Teresa Gallagher's correspondence in indices, 1961.

The newsclippings sub-series contains newsclippings documenting the diagnosis of Dooley's cancer, his operation and death, and his funeral. The clippings also document efforts at establishing a Congressional Gold Medal honoring Dooley and Medico's continuing effort after Dooley's death.

The manuscript sub-series contains one folder of letters to Agnes Dooley sent by Malcolm Dooley to James Monahan of Reader's Digest and Roger Strauss of Farrar, Strauss and Company, as part of the The Night of the Same Day manuscript. These letters are copies of condolences sent from notable celebrities, including the prime minister and charges d'affaires of Laos, the ambassador of Vietnam, the Dalai Lama, Albert Schweitzer, Angiere Biddle Dukeand others.

The Other sub-series contains the sermon delivered by the Reverend Monsignor George J. Gottwald at Dooley's funeral at the St. Louis Cathedral, January 23, 1961 (see also T199.)

Each sub-series is arranged chronologically.

SERIES 5 - POSTHUMOUS, 1961-1976, FOLDERS 134-164

Divided into four sub-series: Correspondence, 1961-1976; Newsclippings, Newsletters and Articles, 1961-1979; Newsclippings, Newsletters and Articles, 1961-1979; and Manuscripts, 1961-1963; and Other, 1961-1976.

The correspondence sub-series contains letters to and from Robert Copenhaver, press relations secretary for Mutual of Omaha, discussing the Dooley Foundation and Dooley's influence on his life; acknowledgements for contributions to MEDICO; correspondence concerning the Dooley Foundation, including letters between Teresa Gallagher and Readers Digest on propriety rights for Before I Sleep, the 1961 memoir of Dooley's last days edited by James Monahan. This sub-series also contains additional letters and indices by Teresa Gallagher documenting the split with MEDICO and the establishment of the Dooley Foundation. It also includes correspondence with the Reverend Maynard Kegler's efforts to have Dooley's cause introduced to the Catholic church for canonization; and a 1975 effort to have a proposed Armed Services medical hospital named after Dooley.

The newsclippings, newsletters and articles sub-series includes articles on Dooley's mother; a Catholic elementary school newsletter containing an article on Dooley; newsclippings documenting the posthumous award of the Congressional Medal of Honor to Dooley's family and the auction of Elizabeth Kormendy's portrait of Dooley; the voluntary bankruptcy filing of the Dr. Tom Dooley Tribute Fund; and continuing efforts to raise money for the Dooley Foundation, 1961-1967. This series also contains news accounts of Father Kegler's efforts to have Dooley canonized and reports of Dooley's ties to the CIA.

The manuscripts sub-series contains correspondence between Teresa

Gallagher and the executor of Dooley's estate, Thomas McDonald, concerning the publication of Dooley's notes and unpublished writings; correspondence and publicity for Agnes Dooley's 1962 book, Promises To Keep; MEDICO reports from 1961; Thomas Dodd's speech before the Senate concerning Laos; the Joint resolution to create a gold medal honoring Dooley and a facsimile of the medal; Melanie Gordon Barber's poem commemorating the third anniversary of Dooley's death; correspondence with the U. S. Post Office concerning the possibility of issuing a commemorative Tom Dooley stamp; and a mayor's proclamation declaring Tom Dooley Day, January 18, 1976, in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania.

Each sub-series is arranged chronologically.

SERIES 6 - ARTICLES, 1960-1969, FOLDERS 165-169

Contains articles written about Tom Dooley in National Geographic, Modern Medicine, American and French editions of Reader's Digest, the Navy Notre Dame Official Program, Catholic Digest and Notre Dame Magazine, 1960-1969.

SERIES 7 - NEWSCLIPPINGS SCRAPBOOKS, 1933-1986, VOLUMES 1-5

This series contains five scrapbooks documenting press accounts of Dooley's life and career, 1933-1986. Arranged chronologically.

SERIES 8 - BOOKS, 1956-1968

Divided into two sub-series: Books by Dooley, 1956-1968; and Books About Dooley and Southeast Asia, 1950-1981. The first series includes autographed copies of Deliver Us From Evil (1956) and The Night They Burned The Mountain (1960). Both series include American and Foreign editions. The folder listing for the second series includes an annotated bibliography.

SERIES 9 - PHOTOGRAPHS 11753-12285, 1932-1986

Divided into three sub-series: Photographs, Scrapbook Photographs, and Exhibit Photographs.

SERIES 10 - ADDENDA, 1976-1988

Divided into two sub-series: Papers about Tom Dooley, 1976-1988; and the finding aid to the Dooley collection located at the Pius XII Memorial Library at St. Louis University, nd.

SERIES 11 - AUDIO TAPES, 1956-1967, T125-T203, T630, T759, and T874-T882.

The Tapes series is divided into two sub-series: Radio Broadcasts, 1956-1960, T125-T203; and Lectures, Interviews, and Biography, 1959-1981, T630, T759, and T874-T882.

The Radio Broadcasts sub-series contains taped copies of "That Free Men May Live," Dooley's weekly program on KMOX radio; an interview with TWA stewardess Sharon Overby; and the church service for Dooley's funeral.

The inventory contains indications for the programs' storage medium, reel or cassette, and the page lengths of existing transcriptions. Arranged chronologically with some early broadcasts appearing at the end of the sub-series. The Lectures, Interviews and Biography sub-series contains seven lectures by Dooley; taped interviews with former Dooley volunteer personal secretary, Lucille Selsor and Muong Sing refugees, and a taped biography of Dooley, 1967.

SERIES 12 - VIDEOTAPES AND FILMS, 1959-1986, VT1-VT7, VT45, VT48 and VT51

Contains seven 3/4' videotapes of Dooley's television appearances; two VHS tapes containing clips from various television appearances promoting Tom Dooley Heritage, Inc. and a KSDK television feature from January, 1986, using material from this collection; and a 16mm film of a visit by Dooley to Minneapolis in 1959.
